

GULF SHORES & ORANGE BEACH TOURISM

In his blogs, Adrian likes to focus on everything that comes along with the ages and stages of his children including food, lifestyle and travel.

“The blog has become a destination for both moms and dads with a lighthearted, honest take on what it’s like in the trenches,” said Adrian.

Adrian grew up visiting the beaches in New Jersey and Ocean City, MD while his wife, an Atlanta-native, spent many summers enjoying time on the Gulf of Mexico. This will be the first time their entire family of six will have visited Gulf Shores and Orange Beach together. They are most excited to search for shells, visit the USS Alabama in Mobile, eat some fresh oysters, and explore the many fun, family-friendly dining options in the destination. They will also be keeping their eyes peeled for local birds and other wildlife.

“The fall weather will certainly be something to highlight as we sit on the beach and wade in the warm, Gulf waters,” he said. “And if the kids tire of the beach, maybe we can check out Waterville, Adventure Island or Fort Morgan.”

The Kulp family will be experiencing our destination Oct. 1-6. If your business is interested in making their first vacation to Gulf Shores and Orange Beach one to remember, please contact Kay Maghan at 251-974-4625 or kmaghan@gulfshores.com.
